Eeeeeee Numb. 3871.

The Daily Courant.

Monday, March 22. 1714.

THE last Post from France brought over the Pastoral Instruction drawn up by those of the Assembly of the Prelates who accepted the Pope's Bull condemning Father Quesnel's New Testament in French with moral Reflexions &c. In a former Courant an Extract was given of some of the 101 Propositions which that Bull condemns, particularly these following.

Prop. 79. 'Tis profitable and necessary in all times, all places, and for all sorts of Persons, to study and know the Spirit, Pity, and Mysteries of the holy Scripture.

80. The reading of the holy Scripture is for all.

81. The sacred obscurity of the word of God is no reason for the Laity to dispense with themselves from reading it.

83. It is an Illusion to perswade ones self, that the Knowledge of the Mysteries of Religion, must not be imparted to Women by the reading of the sacred Books. The abuse of Scripture and Heresies are not sprung from the Simplicity of Women, but from the proud Knowledge of Men.

84. To snatch the New Testament out of the Hands of Christians, or to keep it shut unto them, by depriving them of the Means of understanding it, is to shut unto them the Mouth of Christ.

85. To forbid Christians the reading of the holy Scriptures, especially of the Gospel, is to forbid the use of Light to the Children of Light, and to make them suffer a sort of Excommunication.

We shall here give an Extract of what is said in the Pastoral Instruction touching the foregoing Propositions.

'It were to be wished that every body were capable of reading the Holy Scripture with Edification; we acknowledge the reading of it might be very beneficial to Persons of both Sexes, who are able to make good use of it, who read with a sincere Desire to profit by it, with a Mind humble and docile to the Counsels of their Pastors, and in Dependence on their lawful Superiours.

'But we are very far from thinking that 'tis profitable and necessary in all times, all places, and for all sorts of Persons; that is to say, without Exception of those who are ignorant, unsteady and inconstant in the Faith, to read indistinctly all the Scripture: We are far from thinking, that the Superiours have not a Right to forbid the reading of the Scripture in certain Circumstances; and that such a Prohibition is to shut the Mouth of Jesus Christ, to deprive of Light the Children of Light, and to make them suffer a sort of Excommunication.

'These extravagant Propositions are condemned by the same Authorities which advise the reading of the holy Scriptures. We read in the Second Epistle of St. Peter That there are in the Epistles of St. Paul some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, as they do also other Scriptures unto their own Destruction. St. Gregory, far from allowing every one of the faithful to read indifferently the Sacred Books, would have even Preachers themselves, when they are expounding to the People the Word of God, to pass over in Silence what might be above the Comprehension of their Auditors; which he corroborates by that Passage of St. Paul to the Corinthians, I gave you Milk to drink, and not Meat.

'The Malice of Hereticks has sometimes constrained the Churches of France to take the divine Scriptures out of the Hands of the faithful; which they would not have done, had they not had a Right to do it. Thus did the Council of Toulouze in 1228 on Occasion of the Albigenses; and in this was imitated by the Councils of Narbonne, Cambray, and Bordeaux at the Time when Calvin's Heresy began to appear; and these are incontestible Proofs of this Authority of the Church. We forbid, say the Fathers of the Council of Toulouze, (Can. 14.) the Laity to have the Books of the old and new Testament, except the Psalter, or the Breviary for divine Worship; but we most strictly forbid their having even these translated into the vulgar Tongue.

'It is certain, dear Brethren, that if the reading of the holy Scripture is of it self very profitable and salutary, yet it may be forbidden sometimes, as in fact it has in certain Circumstances; that the Bishops have a Right not to allow the reading of it, or to take it from those who might make a bad Use of it; that it ought not to be read, but with Subordination due to Superiours; and that the Author (F. Quesnel's) Propositions are justly condemned, because they tend to destroy the Submission, which the faithful owe in this point to the Authority of their lawful Pastors.

A Letter from a Vaudois at Berne, to a Friend at the Hague. Dated the 13th of March 1714.

Sir,

'TIS well known to you how on the 23d of May in the Year 1694 his Royal Highness the Duke of Savoy, now King of Sicily, published a solemn Edict in Favour of his Subjects of the Valleys (commonly called the Vaudois), in which he declared, That he had been obliged in 1686 to expell his faithful Subjects from their Valleys, by the pressing and oft-repeated Instances of a neighbouring Potentate; "and protested (to use the very Terms of the "Edict) that he had done nothing against his Subjects of the Valleys of his own voluntary Motion, but had been put upon it by the King of "France; but being convinced that they were "faithful Subjects, and being besides sollicited by "the King of Great-Britain and by the States-"General of the United Netherlands, he had "thought fit for all those Reasons, not to delay "any longer to receive them into Grace. You cannot but remember likewise, how his Royal Highness, to give the greater Weight to this Edict and render it irrevocable, caused it to be registred at Turin, (which Formality had not before been observed with respect to former Declarations granted to the Vaudois, often persecuted and as often restored to Favour.) Yet we see with Grief, that our poor Churches of the Valleys of Lucerne and Prajelas are begun to be persecuted anew.

'Tis not to be imagined, that the King of Sicily has forgotten the Services which our Vaudois have rendred him with so much Zeal and Success, nor the solemn Promises he has often reiterated to them, even just before his Departure for Sicily; but so it is that M. Guiot of the Valley of Prajelas having been sent for to Turin, was put under Arrest there for a Month, and is thence sent to the Castle of Bielle. M. Perron the Physician, Borel, Griot, Tisseraud, and Chalier, have had the like Usage, and been sent to several Forts separate from each other, for having put in Schoolmasters contrary to the good liking of their Parish Priests. Others are in Dungeons at Pignerol, on pretence of their apostatizing from the Romish Faith, into which they

'they were baptized formerly by Force. M. de
'Turin is imprisoned there, because at an Election
'of Consuls, he opposed the Chusing of Roman-
'Catholicks. We have Need of the Prayers of 'the faithful, &c.
